

Self-doubt.

God of encouragement, who draws out the great treasure hidden within me,

I hear the same mantra repeated in my head, “You’re no good, you never have been, you never will be.” I fight to control the demons of self-doubt that taunt me with my worthlessness. Rather than take the risk to chase after my dreams, I worry what others will think when I fail.

The truth is I was made for a good purpose – to know God and be known by Him. I am made in His image and I am his beloved. Like Peter, I’ve been called out of the boat to firmly walk on water, and like Peter, I need the grace to take the risk.

Show me who I am in Your eyes, and give me the courage to take my eyes off myself, off the splashing waves I walk on, and let my eyes be on You.
